The William Pettypool Family of Southside Virginia:
Lineage Reconstruction Based on Current Review of Evidence<sup>1</sup>

This account reports unpublished early records for the immigrant ancestor, reevaluates earlier published compilations and attempts to reconstruct accurately the relationships within a colonial Virginia family carrying the unusual surname Pettypool.<sup>2</sup> Such a surname, because of its low frequency and distinctiveness, normally would yield comparatively easy-to-interpret links between generations. In this instance, two factors combined to confound earlier compilers:<sup>3</sup> the loss and/or previously limited accessibility of many early Southside Virginia records, including orders, deeds and probate, and the recurring use in subsequent generations of the ancestral progenitor's given name, William.

The experiences of this Southside Virginia family of middling status and aspirations are typical in many senses: economically, socially and demographically.<sup>4</sup> William Pettypool, the seventeenth <sup>1</sup> My grateful appreciation to Mr. Russell Pool, 4841 E. Farm Road 52, Fair Grove, Missouri and the late Dr. Herbert Poole, Summerfield, North Carolina for their insights and welcome critiques of earlier versions of this manuscript.

<sup>2</sup> Pettypool has many variant spellings in colonial Chesapeake records including: Petypool, Pettey pool, Petty Pool, Pettipool(e), Petepool, Pettypoole, Pettipoll, and P. Pool. By the early nineteenth century many branches of the family had dropped the fore part of the name altogether, making their separation from other families of the surname Pool and Poole a much more difficult task.

<sup>3</sup> Dr. David Bruce P'Pool, The Pettypool Family History, Beginning about 1700 AD and down to the present time (typescript; Library of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution; Washington, D. C., 1960). All Pettypool family historians owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. P'Pool. Although one can quarrel with some of the conclusions drawn and inferences made about particular lineages, this compilation lays the groundwork for study of the Pettypool family in America. It is particularly strong in tracing the descendants of Seth of the third generation, Dr. P'Pool's direct ancestor.

<sup>4</sup> Studies of colonial social and economic history from the last quarter of the twentieth century have added immeasurably to knowledge of Chesapeake immigrants of the "middling" and lesser sort. Of particular value in understanding events in the lives of seventeenth and early eighteenth century Pettypools were the following: Lois Green Carr, Phillip D. Morgan and Jean B. Russo (eds.), Colonial Chesapeake Society, (Chapel Hill N.C.: University of North Carolina Press, 1988); Gloria L. Main, Tobacco Colony: Life in Early Maryland, 1650-1720 (Princeton NJ: Princeton University Press, 1982); Russell R. Menard, Economy and Society in Early Colonial Maryland (New York: Garland Publishing, 1985); Allan Kulikoff, Tobacco and Slaves: The Development of Southern Cultures in the Chesapeake, 1680-1800 (Chapel Hill N.C.: University of North Carolina Press, 1986). Insight into the meaning of the Southside Virginia experience can be found in Michael Lee Nichols, "Origins of the Virginia Southside, 1703-century progenitor, left only one descendant, also called William. He in turn, living in the improved conditions of early eighteenth century Virginia, was able to leave two male heirs, one also a William. These two produced the large families commonly associated with expanding colonial frontier America, including two more Williams.

As frequently happens, the merged identities of these several eighteenth century men of the same name have impeded proper attribution of descendants in many branches. To redress this difficulty a contemporary review of the extant court orders, deeds, tithes and tax lists for all Southside Virginia counties was undertaken. This compilation documents fully all Pettypool men through the third generation as well as the two men of given name William in the fourth generation. From this review emerges a reconstruction that accounts for most of the "strays" and inconsistencies in earlier compilations.

FIRST GENERATION

Reference to WILLIAM<sup>1</sup> PETTYPPOOL's first mention in American records has lain at hand but undiscovered since the 1934 publication of Nugent's Cavaliers and Pioneers: Abstracts of Virginia Land Patents and Grants 1623-1666.<sup>5</sup> Because of erroneous transcription of the seventeenth century Virginia Land Office patent, the abstract and index to Nugent's monumental effort lists William Pettypool as William Pottpowler.<sup>6</sup> Careful examination of the land office copy, however, shows that on a record dated 25 February 1658 William Pettypoole (possibly Pettypowle) is claimed as one of nine headrights to be exchanged for 450 acres of land in New Kent County.<sup>7</sup> Thomas Merridith is named as patentee in this document, but the original headright claim has been "Assigned by Jno. Davis."<sup>8</sup> In other words, it is John Davis who claims to have financed the transportation of the nine headrights, including William Pettypool, to Virginia. In this transaction Davis chooses not to exercise his right to take up land and instead, transfers this right to an assignee, Thomas Merridith.

Subsequent Virginia records supply evidence regarding the relationship between William Pettypool and John Davis as well as insight into William Pettypool's status in colonial Chesapeake society. In York County on 13 November 1660, a suit is brought by John Raughn against John Davis concerning "tobacco plants of the said Raughn...stolne and caryed away by Order and command of said Davis by his servants William Pettipoole and Anne Smith..."<sup>9</sup> Recorded on the same day are depositions from William and Ann dated the previous day, 12 November 1660. In his deposition

William Pettypoole Saith that about May last...was ord by his then Master John Davis to goe to Burroughs...field being called upp about Midnight it being a great Gust...to steale and take away the plants of Emanuel Allvis & John Raughn the sd Pettypole being unwilling to goe...to steale any mans Goods in such a nature; yet being forced the Saterdag night following being a Covenanted servant did goe, & to that purpose to the Effecting of wch designe hee [Davis] gave him a paire of the othr servants shooes being plaine shoes because the dept shoes were French falls fearing thereby that hee should be trackt to the said Davis his house in carying home the plants. Then 3 dayes after hee the sd Davis came & told yor depont that if he would keep his Councill in the stealing of the said plants & not divulge it abroad to any...then he would willingly give him a heifer of 2 years old...& pmised him further a plantacon in the Narrowes for term of life...<sup>10</sup>

The court minutes also show that Anne Smith deposes the same as William Pettypool with similar pledges made by Davis. Although they appear to escape the court's punishment for their transgressions at this session, at the court held 23 May 1661, it is

Later at the same session, the clerk records that:

On request of William Pettipoole and Anne his wife for a discharge from their Comittmt till they give bond for their good behavior the Ct discharge them accord they paying all costs.<sup>12</sup>

This discharge seems not to have ended their troubles, however, for on 26 August 1661 William Pettypool

...& his wife Anne (as soon as Wm recover from sickness) ord taken into sher's custody & detained till they give bond...for good behavior being persons of scandalous and dangerous behavior...<sup>13</sup>

In a statement recorded the same day they respond by naming "Master Jn Underwood their lawful Attor...",<sup>14</sup> and at the next court, held 31 October 1661, they are again "discharged from bond for good behavior."<sup>15</sup> Subsequent to this order, York County court records make no further mention of William or Ann Pettypool.

These early records, however, allow us to surmise the following:

1. William Pettypool, in company with the majority<sup>16</sup> of his fellow seventeenth century immigrants to Virginia, began his life in America as an indentured servant. Although Ann Smith also likely obtained passage to Virginia as an indentured immigrant, no record documenting her origins has been found.

2. William Pettypool and Ann Smith's servitude ended between May 1660 and their appearance in court on 13 November 1660 as the clerk notes on the latter date that William and Ann were "last May...then both servants."<sup>17</sup>

3. William's release from service in 1660 suggests that his probable date of arrival in the Chesapeake lay between 1653 and 1656. This may be inferred because the Virginia Colonial Assembly had enacted a law in March, 1642/43, requiring a minimum of four years service if a servant was 20 years or older when indentured, five years service if between the ages of 12 and 20 and seven years service if under the age of 12.<sup>18</sup> Only rarely were servants released before serving the minimum allotted four years and only then if they or someone else bought their freedom, conditions unlikely to have characterized the majority of Virginia servants.

4. Based on the previously cited evidence, it is estimated that William Pettypool and Ann Smith were at least age 21 and probably older at the time of their release in 1660, making their projected dates of birth not later than 1639.<sup>19</sup>

5. William Pettypool and Ann Smith were married between 13 November 1660 and 23 May 1661.

Although a search of extant Virginia records for Ann Pettypool yielded no further evidence of Virginia residence after her marriage, William does make one further appearance. Suggesting possible settlement in Surry County, on 7 February 1664 William is enlisted by the Surry constable to serve as a member of a coroner's jury formed to view the "corpse of an unknown young man...found at the Landings of Mr. Benjamin Harrison..."<sup>20</sup> He signs with a mark the unanimous verdict written 8 July 1664 adjudging that the corpse "hath been drowned in the River."<sup>21</sup> No earlier or later mention of him has been found either in Surry County records or in the surviving records of surrounding Virginia counties.

<sup>19</sup> There is, in fact, credible evidence that William was born earlier. The parish register of St. Dunstan's Church, Stepney, a suburb of Elizabethan London, shows an entry for a William Petipoole, son of Samuel and Alice (Jackson) Petipoole, christened 20 October 1630 (Computer printout of St. Dunstan's Stepney, London, England 1621-1641 Births and Christenings A-Z, Batch #C 5576-6 (1978):649, microfilm 1,238,617, FHL, Salt Lake City, Utah). The uniqueness of the surname, and the absence in extant English or American records of any other plausible seventeenth century candidate with the same given name, support the inference that the William Pettypool christened near London in 1630 is the same William who immigrated to America before February, 1658.

Succumbing, perhaps, to the lure of the Chesapeake frontier of the 1660s,<sup>22</sup> William and Ann Pettypool next appear in colonial documents on 28 November 1665 when William is recorded at the Maryland Land Office claiming "...land for transporting himself Ann Pettipoole his wife and William Pettipoole his son [my emphasis] into the Province...".<sup>23</sup> Since he proceeds in the same transaction to assign away his option to this 150 acres of Maryland land, he may never have intended to establish Maryland residence. No further evidence of him has been found in existing Maryland records of this period.

Although William Pettypool's movements subsequent to the 1665 Maryland headright demand are not documented, his wife Ann, with no mention of William, is plaintiff in a suit on 14 December 1668 in the Maryland Provincial Court. This final mention of Ann in Chesapeake records reads:

Francis Cole being bound over to this Court by Ann Pettypoole who swore the plaint ag<sup>t</sup> him and he appear this Court to answer her Complaint Doth accordingly appear but the said Ann nor any other person coming in ag<sup>t</sup> him is Cleared.<sup>24</sup>

Chesapeake colonial courts, following English common law, customarily barred married women from bringing suit in their own name.<sup>25</sup> Thus, except in extraordinary cases, only in widowhood did a woman, once married, acquire the right to prosecute suits at law. Accordingly, Ann Pettypool's 1668 legal action against Francis Cole implies such a change in her marital status, and it thereby is inferred that William, the immigrant, was dead by December 1668.<sup>26</sup>

<sup>22</sup> Menard, Early Colonial Maryland, 163. Citing numerous local histories and genealogies, Menard concludes that Maryland was the Chesapeake frontier in the 1650s and 1660s and that many of the families who migrated there in this period came from Virginia in search of new opportunities.

Papenfuse, Editors (Baltimore, Maryland: The Johns Hopkins University Press, 1977), p. 93. Menard's mortality statistics support the inference that William Pettypool died after little more than one decade in the Chesapeake.

Not again until some 26 years later does the surname Pettypool reappear in extant colonial Chesapeake records. On 3 August 1694 a Will Petepoole is sworn to sit on the grand jury in Charles City County Virginia.<sup>27</sup> Because grand jury service in colonial times required the attainment of one's majority,<sup>28</sup> it is assumed that the Will Petepoole in Charles City County in 1694 was at least 21 years of age and probably older. He was, therefore, born no later than 1673, making him of an age to be the likely son to the immigrant, William Pettypool, whose demand for Maryland headright land in 1665 had included a 50 acre parcel for his minor son William.

The extreme rarity of the surname Pettypool further supports the conclusion that it is William<sup>2</sup>, son of the immigrant William, and not another hypothetical immigrant of the same name in the Charles City County record. Exhaustive searches of colonial name indexes and county court records for both Maryland and Virginia have revealed no evidence of any others of this surname in seventeenth-century colonial Chesapeake.

SECOND GENERATION

1. WILLIAM<sup>2</sup> PETTYPOOL was born between 1661 and 1665. He apparently continued to reside in Charles City County after his 1694 grand jury appointment as William Pettipoll appears on the Charles City County militia list for 1701/2.<sup>29</sup> Although the large scale loss of seventeenth and eighteenth century records during the Civil War for Charles City County and its earliest descendant, Prince George County, greatly impede research, William Pettypool appears as follows in a list of surveys made in Prince George County by Robert Bolling, surveyor:

Seventy percent of all males immigrating to the Chesapeake in the middle decades of the seventeenth century died before reaching age 50; forty-one percent died before age 40. Also, recall that in early August, 1661 the York County Virginia court had deferred detention of William because of sickness. Malaria and other water-borne diseases were endemic to the Chesapeake of that era.

March 5, 1711, For William Pettypool on S. side of Moccasonock Creek adjacent to his own land - 65 acres.<sup>30</sup>

The following Virginia land patent records contain the probable date of patent for the land surveyed in 1711 as well as another tract.

15 July 1717. William Pettypoole. 65 acres. Prince George County. On south side of Moccosoneck Creek, adjoining his own line.<sup>31</sup>

9 July 1724. William Pettypool. 177 acres. Prince George County. On the lower side of Glancey's Quarter Branch, adjoining his own land.<sup>32</sup>

In addition to working the land, as implied by his ownership of tracts along Moccosoneck Creek, William Pettypool of Prince George County also participated in trade with native peoples beyond the Virginia frontier. On 22 March 1710/11 John Wright, field agent for the South Carolina Board of Commissioners of the Indian Trade, reported to the Board that "William Dettypoole [sic], Tho. Edwards and Henry Tally of Virginia..." had posted bond in the amount of 100 pounds for a license to trade among the South Carolina natives.<sup>33</sup> Distressed by competition from Virginia traders, the South Carolina colonial government, beginning in 1707, had required any Virginian trading in Carolina to post bond so as to guarantee good behavior among the natives.<sup>34</sup> Retained by the Board to live in the native

Suspecting that a transcription error in McDowell's published version was responsible for mistakenly identifying William Pettypool as William "Dettypoole," a copy of the original 22 March 1710/11 proceedings of the Board of Commissioners was obtained from the South Carolina Department of History and Archives. In this instance, the error lay either in John Wright's report or in the Board clerk's recording of the proceedings as the archival record also reads "Dettypoole."

villages, Wright apparently had encountered William Pettypool and the other two Virginians trading cooperatively in the South Carolina backcountry. Living south of the James River in Prince George County, Virginians such as William Pettypool were well placed to pursue trading as an added source of livelihood.<sup>35</sup>

Two additional records from the second decade of the eighteenth century document William<sup>2</sup> Pettypool of Prince George County in relation to other colonial residents. In the first, "William Pettypool Sr." is designated a legatee in Thomas Parham's will, probated 14 May 1717 in Prince George County.<sup>36</sup> Parham bequeaths 50 acres along Moccasoneck Creek to William but does not specify the nature of their relationship. It may be that William Pettypool and Thomas Parham were related through female lines, possibly from a remarriage of William's mother, Ann (Smith) Pettypool, or through the family of William's wife, Elizabeth. Colonial Chesapeake records thus far have not yielded sufficient evidence to support either proposition. The second record documents a January 1720/21 court order in which William proves an October, 1720 deed for sale of property from Charles Russell to John Bowling in nearby Henrico County.<sup>37</sup> This record also has been treated as a lead in the search for the family of William's wife, Elizabeth, but thus far without success.

Perhaps in recognition of advancing age, as he likely would have been nearing the seventh decade of his life, William<sup>2</sup> Pettypool made a will in September of 1721. As the document was not probated until 14 March 1726, he may have lived nearly five years longer. The abstracted will of William Pettypool reads:

13 September 1721. Prince George County. Will of William Pettypool. Two cows, half "my wearing Cloaths" and one gray colt to son William; two cows, three pounds one shilling "which is due to me," half "my wearing Cloaths," one long gun and one grey mare and foal to son Seth; two cows and one Sorrel mare to daughter Anne Mercy; one cow, one horse and three pounds four shillings to daughter Mary Broadaway; land bought of John Stroud to grandson William Mercy; "all remainder of my land" after wife's decease to granddaughter Martha Mercy; all

Charles City County Virginia as evidenced by his father William's presence there between 1694 and 1701. He presumably was the elder of the two sons alive at the time of the writing of his father's will. He is named first as well as appointed executor when the elder William's relict, Elizabeth, declines to accept the responsibility.<sup>46</sup> He may not, however, have been eldest of the four named children as only his sister, Ann Massey, had children remembered by the elder William Pettypool in his will of 13 September 1721.

The parents of William Pettypool's wife, Frances, remain unknown. She first appears in colonial records at the christening of her son, Stephen, an event recorded in the Bristol Parish Register as follows:

stephen son of Wm and frances pettypool jun born 30th octobe<sup>r</sup>
1721 bapt 14 feb 1722-23<sup>47</sup>

Although the exact date of Frances Pettypool's death has not been established, she is known to have survived until 1763. During March and August of that year she is listed in a surviving Dinwiddie County Clerks Fee Book for costs associated with probating the estate of "William Pettypool deceased."<sup>48</sup>

William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool can be traced in extant colonial records beginning on 22 June 1722<sup>49</sup> when he patents what is to be the first of several tracts of land along Sappony Creek in then Prince George County, and what became Dinwiddie County when it was cut off in 1752. These patents, spanning a thirty year period, chronicle an expanding estate, at least in terms of land ownership. However, in the nearly total absence of Prince George and Dinwiddie County deed and court records from this period, it is impossible to know with certainty which parcels were permanently seated or ultimately sold. These patents are abstracted below:

That some portion of these Sappony Creek lands was occupied by William Pettypool, his wife Frances and their family is virtually certain. Some of the earliest surviving eighteenth century Dinwiddie County records show that William<sup>3</sup>'s younger sons and their descendants pay taxes on parcels of land on and near Sappony Creek.<sup>55</sup>

Although William Pettypool likely continued to reside along Sappony Creek until his death, from an early date he also patented land in newly opened sections of the Virginia frontier. The following additional patents are recorded for him:

5 Jun 1745. William PettyPool. 676 acres. Brunswick County. On the east side of Fucking Creek.<sup>57</sup>

12 Jan<sup>xy</sup> 1746. William Petty Pool Sen<sup>r</sup>. 877 acres. Lunenburg County. On the West side of Fucking Creek beginning near the head of said Creek.<sup>58</sup>

Whether these lands were acquired in order to ensure the availability of non-depleted lands for his own use, to provide for his many sons or merely for speculative gain cannot be fully ascertained. The recorded sale of the 676 acre parcel (which included the 1732 grant of 276 acres) for 90 pounds on 3 October 1748<sup>59</sup> lends some support to the latter interpretation. After the 1759 land grant in Dinwiddie County there is no additional mention of William Pettypool in the extant records of Dinwiddie County or its vicinity until March, 1763 when his wife, Frances, and son, Seth, are noted as executors of his estate.<sup>60</sup>

Several of William and Frances Pettypool's children are known from the baptism records of Bristol Parish or by their association with one or the other of their parents in extant legal records. These children include the following, order not certain:

<sup>72</sup> Ephraim Pettypool's probable descent from William<sup>3</sup> and Frances Pettypool is affirmed by his appearance as a plaintiff in probate proceedings against the estate of William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool in August, 1763 in Dinwiddie County as cited in John Frederick Dorman, "Dinwiddie County Clerk's Fee Book, 1763," The Virginia Genealogist Volume 40, Number 1 (January/March, 1996):19. Moreover, his receipt of a land patent in 1756 (Va. Abstracts, Brunswick Co. Book 33:281, microfilm 29310, FHL, Salt Lake City, Utah) would have required him to be 21 years of age. With the exception of Seth<sup>3</sup> (whose descendants have been accounted for), no Pettypool man other than William<sup>3</sup> was of sufficient age to have sired Ephraim.

Three additional Southside Virginia men are probable children of William and Frances Pettypool although definitive documentary evidence for such attribution remains to be found. The births of the five children documented in the Bristol Parish Register cover an eighteen-year interval. Without positing a longer reproductive span than implied by the known records, the likelihood that several additional children were born to William and Frances Pettypool is strong. Moreover, the following Pettypool men appear in geographic and social association with known children of William and Frances and cannot be attributed to the only other Pettypool man of childbearing age (Seth<sup>3</sup>) living in Southside Virginia at the time. These men are:

Pettypool families migrated together southward from Virginia into North and South Carolina over the course of the latter third of the eighteenth century. The two appear as taxpayers in Pitt County, North Carolina in 1764, as reported in Clarence E. Ratcliff, North Carolina Taxpayers 1701-1786, (Baltimore: Genealogical Publishing Co., 1984), 159. Later they appear contemporaneously in the records of Camden District, South Carolina during the decade of the 1780s (Brent Holcomb & Elmer O. Parker, Abstractors, Camden District, South Carolina Wills and Administrations 1781-1796 (1770-1796), (Easley, S.C.: Southern Historical Press, 1978) 2,6).

<sup>83</sup> Frederick Pettypool's appearance as a plaintiff in Sussex County in 1763 (Sussex Co. Va. Court Orders 1761-1764:271, microfilm 34175, FHL, Salt Lake City, Utah) implies a birth date not later than 1742. As such it puts Frederick within the documented childbearing period of William<sup>3</sup> and Frances Pettypool of Dinwiddie County. Moreover, the geographic proximity of Sussex and Dinwiddie counties further supports his likely descent from this couple.

<sup>86</sup> John and Anne Pettypool had a son, John, who was baptized 14 February 1762 as noted in Gertrude R. B. Richards Ph.D., Register of Albemarle Parish Surry and Sussex Counties, 1739-1778, (1958, Rpt. Easley, S.C.: Southern Historical Press, Inc., 1984), 87. Even allowing for a very young marriage on John Pettypool Senior's part (say 18 years), this still puts his birth no later than 1744, again making him a likely candidate for inclusion in the family of William<sup>3</sup> and Frances Pettypool of Dinwiddie County. As with Abraham and Frederick, the available geographic evidence also supports this contention. John Pettypool Senior and his descendants pay taxes in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries for lands on and near Sappony Creek, the home site of William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool.

3. SETH<sup>3</sup> PETTYPOOL (William<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>) son of William and Elizabeth Pettypool was born by 1701, presumably in Charles City County, Virginia. He is first reported in colonial records on 8 February 1720/21 when a survey of 134 acres "Lying between Drury Bolling's Lands and the Middle Creek" in Prince George County is recorded for him.<sup>90</sup> He obtained patent to the land on 22 June 1722.<sup>91</sup>

Although the surname of Seth Pettypool's wife is unknown, the records of Bristol Parish document her existence in the following record of her daughter Elizabeth's baptism:

Eliz: dau. Seth and Martha Pettypool born 8th May 1721
bap<sup>t</sup> Octob<sup>r</sup> 7th 1722<sup>92</sup>

Thus, Seth Pettypool and Martha _____ likely were married prior to 1721. A deed record from Halifax County Virginia indicates that Martha was alive as late as 12 June 1773. On that date, she serves as witness to the sale of her son William's land by setting her mark M to the indenture.<sup>93</sup>

Unlike his brother, William<sup>3</sup>, who apparently resided permanently along Sappony Creek, Seth Pettypool continued to move south and west as the Virginia Southside opened for settlement. Although early court records<sup>94</sup> and land patents<sup>95</sup> suggest a move to Namozine Creek, the watercourse forming the border between lower Amelia County and upper Prince George County, Seth very early relocated to the newly opened Brunswick County. This move probably was undertaken in the company of kinsmen as he settled in Brunswick close enough to his sister Ann Massey to serve as witness to the 1739 will of her husband, Richard Massey.<sup>96</sup>

When Lunenburg County was cut off from Brunswick in 1746, Seth Pettypool resided far enough west in Brunswick to thenceforth be considered a resident of Lunenburg County. Both as plaintiff and defendant, he appears among the earliest court orders of the newly constituted Lunenburg County. In company with most of his contemporaries, his tenure in Lunenburg found him involved in numerous suits relating to minor debts at these quarterly courts.<sup>97</sup>

In 1753<sup>98</sup> Seth Pettypool further consolidated his holdings at the western edge of development and had 400 acres "joining his own line" surveyed on Aarons Creek in Halifax County, itself newly formed in 1752 from Lunenburg. An additional 400 acres were surveyed in 1756,<sup>99</sup> a tract of 383 acres patented in 1765<sup>100</sup> and another 100 acres bought in 1771.<sup>101</sup> Straddling the boundary between what was then Lunenburg (but is now Mecklenburg) and Halifax Counties, the Aarons Creek holdings became the final stop for Seth Pettypool and family.

From the beginning of Seth Pettypool's settlement along Aarons Creek, the vestrymen of Antrim Parish (the ecclesiastical district coterminus with Halifax County) called upon Seth to assist in processioning the boundaries of tracts in his area. He is noted in this capacity from 1753 until 1767.<sup>102</sup> These activities being the extent of his documented civic participation, he thus served but a minor role in parish and county governance.

Although no will has been found for Seth Pettypool, a 1768 deed to son William reveals his economic worth toward the end of his life. The 1768 transaction, completed "in consideration of the sum of five hundred Pounds current money of Virginia,"<sup>103</sup> accrued to William 588 acres, four negro slaves, four feather beds and furniture, six head of horses and mares, 15 head of cattle, 13 head of sheep, and 50 head of hogs. While not wealthy, Seth had attained a measure of economic success by Southside standards. Blessed as well by a relatively long life, his final recorded act occurred on 4 March 1773 when he made a deed of gift of 64 acres to grandson Benjamin Pettypool.<sup>104</sup>

Attempts to associate Benjamin with Seth Pettypool's known male progeny have been unsuccessful. Such a gift of land, coming at the probable end of his life, may signal Seth's concern for a grandchild who could not otherwise be provided for by customary inheritance procedures. One possibility is that Benjamin may have been a child born out of wedlock to a Seth Pettypool daughter.

4. WILLIAM<sup>4</sup> PETTYPOOL (William<sup>3</sup>, William<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>) of Lunenburg County has been confused by earlier compilers<sup>134</sup> with his father, William<sup>3</sup> of Prince George (then Dinwiddie) County and with his younger cousin, William<sup>4</sup> (son of Seth<sup>3</sup>) of Halifax County. This William<sup>4</sup> Pettypool was born by 1720 in Prince George County to William and Frances Pettypool and died before 10 November 1774 in Lunenburg County, Virginia.<sup>135</sup> acres on the "North side of Couches Creek" to his "beloved Son-in-law William Petepool and Mary his wife." This is land "adjoyning the Plantation whereon the said Petepool now lives." Moreover, according to Caldwell's instructions, this land is to be equally divided between "my two Gran-Children Colwell Petepool and William Petepool" at the deaths of their parents.<sup>136</sup>

Accordingly, we know from this 1748 record that this William Pettypool already is established on Couches Creek in Lunenburg County and that he has at least two children. William's son, "Colwell" attained his majority (age 21) before 12 August 1763 as on that date he was named as defendant in a suit brought before the Lunenburg County court.<sup>137</sup> Accordingly, William's probable date of marriage to Mary Caldwell occurred no later than 1741 and his probable date of birth was 1720 or earlier. Lunenburg County land tax returns document that Mary (Caldwell) Pettypool remained on the Couches Creek property until her death between 1806 and 1807.<sup>138</sup>

Evidence that this Couches Creek William<sup>4</sup> is the son of William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool of Prince George (then Dinwiddie) County is contained in the Lunenburg County court records for the January term 1749.<sup>139</sup> In a suit brought by William Pettypool against John Stone, William of Lunenburg County calls two witnesses to assist in pressing his suit: Edward Caldwell and William Pettypool Sen<sup>r</sup>. The court orders William to pay Edward merely for "four days attendance according to law." In contrast, for William Pettypool Sen<sup>r</sup> "It is ordered that the said William pay him for two days attendance and for once coming and returning Sixty-five miles [emphasis mine] according to Law." In order to estimate the probable location of William Pettypool Senior's home, maps provided by the Virginia Department of Transportation were consulted. An arc with radius representing thirty-two and one half miles extending east from the site of the early Lunenburg court was traced.<sup>140</sup> Not surprisingly, the trace of the path bisects present Dinwiddie County and crosses Sappony Creek at a point consistent with the likely location of William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool's home tracts. Thus, available evidence supports the inference that the younger William was assisted in this suit by his own father, William<sup>3</sup> Pettypool of Prince George, as well as by his father-in-law Edward Caldwell.

Separation of William<sup>4</sup> Pettypool of Lunenburg from his cousin William<sup>4</sup> of Halifax County relies again on evidence from the court records. While William of Halifax lived long enough to serve in a Revolutionary War militia,<sup>141</sup> William Pettypool of Lunenburg was dead before 10 November 1774. On the latter date the "Noncupative Will of William Pettypool Sen<sup>r</sup> dec<sup>d</sup> was produced in Court."<sup>142</sup> David Burton, one of the witnesses to the will, swore that William Pettypool gave "all his Estate both real and Personal to his wife so long as she continued his Widow. But in case she married again it was his Will that all the said Estate would be sold and the money arising there from should be put out at interest and be equally divided between his three youngest Sons."<sup>143</sup> On 13 July 1775, "Mary Pettypool, Widow of William Pettypool Sen<sup>r</sup> dec<sup>d</sup> relinquished her right to the Administration of the... Estate..."<sup>144</sup>

While no known documentary evidence exists as to the surname of William Pettypool's wife, Sarah, an informal "history" written by her great-grandson dated 27 September 1900, indicates that she was born Sarah Tyne (Tynes).<sup>181</sup> According to Halifax County land tax records, Sarah Pettypool was alive in 1826 but deceased by 1827.<sup>182</sup>

William Pettypool lived his entire adult life in Halifax County, farming tracts on or near Aaron's Creek and residing most likely on the land bought from his father, Seth. Like most of his contemporaries, land transfers account for the majority of William Pettypool's appearances in Halifax County records. He is, however, mentioned in other contexts. On 21 November 1776, he is appointed Elbert Stephen P'Pool, grandson of Stephen Pettypool of Mecklenburg Co. and great-grandson of William and Sarah Pettypool of Halifax Co. wrote what he remembered of his forebears in a "history" dated 27 September 1900 which is reproduced in Pettypool Family History. The presence of two Tynes families in Halifax County during the latter part of the eighteenth century, as reported in Roger C. Dodson, Property Lines from an Old Survey Book, Halifax County, Virginia 1741 to 1901 (Danville, Va.: VA-NC Piedmont Genealogical Society, 1998), 50, lend additional credibility to a possible Tynes origin for Sarah.

"surveyor of the road,"<sup>183</sup> while in August, 1777, William Pettypool is "recommended...to be appointed and added to the Militia of this County..."<sup>184</sup> Serving during the Revolutionary War as an ensign in the company of Captain Richard Jones, William Pettypool bore the colors for his unit.

In a later record (22 September 1798), it is noted that William Pettypool, Ambrose Gregory and John Wilbourn make bond "unto James Wood Esq governor of Virginia in sum of five hundred Dollars" as promise to "well and truly perform and Execute the building of a bridge across Aron (sic) creek at Peter Overbeys."<sup>185</sup> This is likely the site of Pool's Mill, shown on contemporary maps near the spot where US Highway 58 crosses Aaron's Creek at the boundary between Halifax and Mecklenburg Counties. Final references to William Pettypool of Halifax document the appraisal and distribution of his estate among his nine children between 24 May and 25 October 1813.<sup>186</sup>

SUMMARY

William<sup>1</sup> Pettypool was the earliest and apparently the only immigrant of his surname in colonial America. While some of the data presented here have appeared in partial form elsewhere, this study represents an attempt to collate and interpret systematically all available early records pertaining to the immigrant William and his earliest colonial descendants. Another purpose of this account is to distinguish among the several William Pettypools born in Southside Virginia during the pre-Revolutionary era. Because of the recurring use of the given name William, earlier compilers of colonial descendants have tended to confuse generations and thereby wrongly attribute descendants. Other interested researchers are encouraged to use this information as a springboard for seeking solutions to remaining unsolved puzzles.
